Affectionate tributes were paid to Ernest Warner, donor of the land for the Foundation site, by Elmer Lyson of Palos Park, and Mrs. Newton of Chicago, both of whom had known Mr. Warner personally.

The secretary's report of the last annual meeting was given by Miss Clara Myrick of Orland, who has been secretary ever since the beginning of the project.

Gordan Adler of Harvey, the retiring treasurer, showed the finances to be in excellent condition.

Jeep-Drive Winds Up In Homer Twp. Farmer's Yard

Very early Monday morning a young Joliet man, driving a Jeep apparently mistook the Jacob McGuire farm in Homer township, for a highway, and after circling the house several times, wrecking several fences in his itinerary, finally found the road and started west at a smart pace. At the end of the road, about a half mile from the McGuire place, he failed to turn and crashed through another fence, landing in a field near Gene Anderson's home with the Jeep wrong-side up.

Mr. McGuire heard the crash; roused several neighbors and hastened to the scene of the accident. By this time the youth had walked to the near-by Alvin Eberhardt home for help. The Sheriff's office was called with Deputy Ross White responding, who took the boy to Joliet and had the Jeep towed in by a wrecker.

Both the youth and Jeep were somewhat battered, but not seriously injured.

AN OPEN LETTER FROM PHYSICIANS IN THIS TERRITORY

To the People in Mokena, Frankfort and New Lenox:

You have received a letter from the Will County Tuberculosis Association. This letter is an appeal for funds to carry on a tuberculosis control program in Will County.

Tuberculosis is a major public health problem because it is a communicable disease, spread from person to person, taking as many lives as all other infectious and parasitic diseases combined. Its control is a matter of vital public concern because until all necessary steps have been taken to prevent its spread in the community, no one is safe.

With funds raised solely from the Annual Seal Sale, your tuberculosis association conducts a year around program to control this disease in this county. The association conducts mass free chest x-ray surveys, provides free health talks, movies, health posters, literature, and rehabilitation service.

There should be no question as to the value that will be received from the financial support given to this association. Buy and use the Christmas Seals.

RETURNS HOME AFTER VACATIONING IN FLORIDA

Miss Adeline Semmler returned Monday by plane from a three week visit in Florida. She spent two weeks with Mr. and Mrs. Harland Merrill and family at Hialeah and enjoyed her stay there very much. One of the outstanding trips they took was one over the "Keys Over-Seas" bridge by motor, one bridge being ten miles long and the other 7 miles long. They connect Florida with Key West.

Mr. Merrill is employed by a newspaper office in Hialeah where they publish a number of weekly tabloids and several monthly magazines.

From Hialeah, Adeline went by bus to St. Petersburg to visit her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Houchin, who live in a lovely trailer located in Treasure Village. This is a lovely camp with several hundred trailers encamped there. Once a week at this camp there is a movie, bunco party and bingo party for the residents of the camp. Adeline took the plane from Tampa Monday morning at 8:30 and arrived at the Municipal airport at 1:30 p. m. with one stop being made at Atlanta, Ga. She will be back at her old job at the Tinley Park Times office next week.

Many Guests Attend Golden Wedding Anniversary

A beautiful sun shine day, greeted Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Kohlhaugen and their many guests, Tuesday, Nov. 19, when they celebrated their golden wedding anniversary in their home in Frankfort with an open house.

Mrs. Eloise Wright of River Forest, Ill., received the 155 guests and had charge of the guest book. She was the only daughter of the honored couple who was able to attend. Another daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Homer F. Gardner and daughter Sue, talked to their parents from their home in New York.

Many beautiful flowers, gifts and 150 cards were sent to mingle with the many good wishes extended to Mr. and Mrs. Kohlhaugen.

The dining table was laid with a lovely cluny lace cover. A cluster of crystal candle holders with six yellow candles, surrounded with yellow chrysanthemums and a beautiful four-tiered wedding cake, decorated with yellow roses and leaves, the gift of Mr. and Mrs. Wright, formed the table decorations.

In charge of the silver services were: Mrs. Pearl Oetter of Frankfort, niece, and Mrs. Violet Bettenhausen of Green Garden, great niece of Mrs. Kohlhaugen.

Mrs. Lydia Andres of Tinley Park and Mrs. Mary Bettenhausen of Green Garden; Mrs. Lillian Roberts of Whiting, Ind., nieces; Mrs. Carl Weber, Manteno another great niece had charge of the serving from the kitchen.

On the unusual side was the fact that the guest book was given to Mr. and Mrs. Kohlhaugen when they were married 50 years ago, by Mrs. Amanda Klensky, wife of the pastor who married them, and who confirmed Mrs. Kohlhaugen in the Green Garden Methodist church when she was a young lady. The book was not used at that time, due to a quiet wedding, and it has been taken good care of all these years and is in perfect condition. The reading and verses are printed in the German language.

Among the guests were Mrs. James Fulton of Tinley Park, a cousin who is 79 years old; a sister of Mrs. Kohlhaugen, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Deist of Frankfort who will celebrate their 60th wedding anniversary in March; Mr. and Mrs. Peter Hansen of Joliet who will celebrate their 65th wedding anniversary next year and Mr. and Mrs. John Staff of Frankfort who celebrated their 55th wedding anniversary in October.

Other guests came from Manhattan, Peotone, Monee, Tinley Park, Mokena, Joliet, Marley, Green Garden, Blue Island, Manteno and Whiting, Ind.

It was a day never to be forgotten by the Kohlhaugens and they want to extend their great appreciation for the kindness of their many friends and relatives who helped to make the day such a wonderful event for them.

PLANE CRASH ON NEW LENOX FARM

Bernard Mulcahy, 20 and John Steed 19, of Joliet, both suffered serious injuries in an airplane accident, Sunday afternoon when the plane they had rented from the Joliet Municipal Airport fell 50 feet into a plowed field on the farm of Walter Palmer, 1½ miles south of New Lenox.

When the plane developed engine trouble, Mulcahy, piloting it, started to bring it down in the plowed field, resulting in a crash landing.

Dr. McMahon of Mokena and Dr. Brannon of Manhattan were both called and aided the injured boys previous to the arrival of the Dames ambulance which removed them to St. Joseph's hospital where they are recovering from head and eye injuries.

RED CROSS ELECT OFFICERS

The church was decorated with palms, and chrysanthemums. Mrs. Erich Bizer played a group of love songs and the Lohengrin's wedding march and accompanied Miss Katherine Lambrecht when she sang, "O Perfect Love" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Her finger tip veil was caught with a net tiera and orange blossoms, and she carried an arm bouquet of white chrysanthemums with baby mums caught on white ribbon streamers. She was given in marriage by her mother.

Change in Beneficiaries

Because the new insurance act of 1946 has completely changed regulations with respect to beneficiaries, Veterans' administration is urging all veterans who have National Service Life insurance to designate beneficiaries for their insurance if they have not already done so.

The old provision of the law provided for an automatic order of succession in the event no beneficiary was designated, but on and after July 31, 1946, that provision no longer holds. Under the new law, if the insured is not survived by a designated beneficiary, proceeds of his insurance will be paid in a single sum to his estate at his death.

As part of an estate, insurance loses its identity, as such, and is subject to all laws governing estates, including claims of creditors, administrator's fees and court expenses. This would expose dependents to the risk of unnecessary expense and delay. In addition to naming a primary or first beneficiary, it also is important for a veteran to name contingent or secondary beneficiaries, because in case the first beneficiary is deceased, unpaid benefits will be paid into the insured's estate. All restrictions upon the choice of beneficiaries also are removed under the new law and the insured now may designate any person or persons, a corporation or his estate as beneficiary.

Questions and Answers

Q. My son was overseas 14 months. While there he was wounded and contracted malaria and jungle fever. He is unable to hold a job because he is sick half the time. Is there any way he can receive care and a pension without entering a veteran's hospital? — Mrs. V. F., Lancaster, Calif.

A. There is a provision that eligible veterans may receive home town care from local physicians in states where the state medical association has entered into an agreement for such care with Veterans' administration. California doctors have made such a contract. However, to obtain a pension it would be necessary for the veteran to undergo a medical examination by physicians of the Veterans' administration to determine his disability rating, although this may not necessitate hospitalization. Suggest you contact your nearest Veterans' administration office and they can advise you.

Q. What are the requirements of a disabled veteran to be eligible for a car at the expense of Veterans' administration? How do you go about getting your national insurance changed to a 20-year payment? — W. F., Lewistown, Pa.

A. The law provides that any veteran of World War II who has lost the use of, or lost one or both legs at or above the ankle, upon application is authorized to purchase an automobile from a dealer of his own choice at a cost not to exceed $1,600. A form may be obtained from your nearest VA office. In changing over your insurance, your nearest Veterans' administration office will provide you the necessary forms and instructions in making out your application for the change.

Q. Is it true that all 1945 draftees will be released from the army by December 31, 1946? — A. J. R., Ada, Okla.

A. Not necessarily. While some newspapers interpreted an October 17 ruling of the army to mean they would, the regulation merely provided that, in an effort to place the army on a volunteer basis and to increase efficiency, sufficient personnel to bring the army down to strength to meet decreased appropriations would be discharged on or before December 31, 1946. The army now is preparing an additional ruling to make the October 17 order more specific.

Q. My husband is in the army and we are expecting a child in November. Am I entitled to maternity care from the government? — Mrs. F. C., Hollywood, Ala.

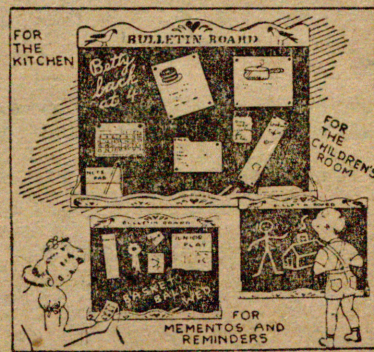

A. If your husband is an enlisted man in the first three grades, you are entitled to maternity care. Suggest that your husband consult his commanding officer for all details, or you may apply to your local Red Cross for information.

Q. My son enlisted in the army air corps for 3 years. He is 16 years old. I would like to know if he can be put in the stockade or given a dishonorable discharge for being in the army under age? — N. N. P., Ferndale, Mich.

A. Although your son entered the army by giving his age wrong, ordinarily the army will do nothing about it. They certainly will not give him a dishonorable discharge. If you should ask for his discharge due to his age, he might be released with an honorable discharge. That is all.

Kidneys Must Work Well-

For You To Feel Well
24 hours every day, 7 days every week, never stopping, the kidneys filter waste matter from the blood.
If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove surplus fluid, excess acids and other waste matter that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole system is upset when kidneys fail to function properly.Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warns that something is wrong. You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, rheumatic pains, getting up at night, swelling.
Why not try Doan's Pills? You will be using a medicine recommended the country over. Doan's stimulates the function of the kidneys and help them to flush out poisonous waste from the blood. They contain nothing harmful.

DOAN'S PILLS

The Sweeping Tides
by H. M. EGBERT W. N. U. SERVICE

Mark Darrell, young American lumberman, is boss of a lumber camp near St.
Victor, Canada. He has fallen in love with Madame Madeleine Kinross, young widow who owns the timberland. She returns his affection, but tells him that marriage is impossible, as she believes her husband is still alive. Her lawyer, Horace Broussac, is also a suitor. When he was rejected, he became Mark's bitter enemy. As Mark returns to camp he is set upon by three men. They bind him, throw him into his cabin and set fire to the surrounding brush. Nat Page, his assistant, sees the smoke and hurries to the rescue. Meanwhile, Mark's enemies are gathered in the town tavern,
drinking to keep up their courage.

CHAPTER VIII

The smoke cloud had blotted out the mist. A little, anxious group had gathered about Nat Page at the mill, looking northward toward it.
Now and again flashes of lurid fire could be seen in the midst of the curling smoke, that was beginning to obscure the stars in the night sky.

"The whole deck is afire," said one of the lumberjacks. "It will take in Monsieur Darrell's cabin."

"But he could not have been asleep. He must have escaped in time," said another.

They peered anxiously across the dark terrain, but by now the smoke was rolling toward them, blotting out all sight of anything.

Nat Page spoke sharply: "Get all the men you can, with axes. Mr.
Darrell may have been trapped in his cabin. It's up to us to get him out."

Within five minutes, twenty-five men were streaming across the terrain. At first they poured along the trail under a sky of blinding smoke.
Then the heat of the fire began to reach them. Little rilletts of fire ran through the underbrush on either side of them. And the cabin was still far away, in the heart of the dense, yellow smoke-cloud that was pouring toward them.

"Monsieur, if he is in his cabin,
we are too late."

"We'll try."

Nat led the way. The smoke was almost intolerable now, the lumbermen gasped and choked as they faced the turbid, yellow clouds. And now they were approaching the district of the fire.
On either side of the runway, wisps of flame were racing through the scrub, and, in front of them, was a solid roaring wall of fire, eating up the trees, and roaring toward the neck and the natural bridge.

A 'Dead Man' Returns
To Take Vengeance

The lumbermen halted, overcome
by the heat of the conflagration.
"We can't go any further," big Louis said to Nat. "See, boss, there is a line of flame right along the ridge. The cabin is behind that.
If he has not escaped, he is roasted
to a cinder by now."

"No time," Nat panted. "We've got—to—get on."
And he hurled himself against the wall of living fire that was sweeping down with a roar, as the rising wind fanned it—hurled himself against it only to recoil. He knew that, if Mark was in the hut in the heart of that conflagration, there was not one chance in a thousand that he could escape alive.

The fog was thickening. Andre, well fortified with brandy, had vanished silently from the hotel;
but Hector Mackintosh and Monsieur Alphonse Vitard still sat there, drinking and muttering together. Outside, a strange silence seemed to brood over St. Victor. No voices were heard now. The settlement might have been depopulated.

Then suddenly the outer door of the hotel banged. Mackintosh and Vitard straightened themselves convulsively in their chairs. Someone was coming along the hall toward their room, shouting an old ballad throatily.

"Mon Dieu, it's he!" whispered
Mackintosh in terror.

They leaped to their feet, they looked about them for weapons.

They were too late. The door was flung open, as if by a blast of wind,
and a man stood before them.

He must have been six feet two or three in height, and he was built like a Hercules. His long, blond hair hung down over his forehead. His clothes were nondescript, and did not fit him at all.
They consisted of a sweater, jacket and trousers, but they were not the sort of clothes that are to be found along the St. Lawrence.

He stood before them, ending his snatch of song, and then he laughed gustily. Eyes of pale brown that passed from face to face, while the two shrank back against the wall, watching him in turn.

"So I have found you! But where is Andre Galipeault?"

"At the lighthouse, Eric. He keeps the lighthouse now, mon seigneur. Your wife's father is dead."

There was something like madness that sounded in the bay of mirth that burst from Eric Kinross's lips.

"And my little wife?"

"She is there, living there still."

"Ah! And what have you to say, my comrades, who sailed away and left me to face the murder charge on
St. Pierre?"

It was Monsieur Vitard who answered in trembling accents, "Eric,

we were not so much to blame.
We tried to restrain you from drinking that French brandy. Then the brawl arose with the French revenue men, and you killed one of them with a blow of your fist."

"We were afraid. We fled back to the schooner. We told everybody that you had been lost on an ice-floe, for fear that the truth would be known, and we should be arrested, and taken away to prison
in France—Hector and I and Andre."

"Aye! You told nobody the truth.
My wife thinks I am dead and has remarried? Come, I'll have the truth! I'll have the truth, I say."

"She has never remarried, mon seigneur," faltered Hector Mackintosh, "and she does not believe you are dead. Somehow—somehow the truth has been guessed by everybody in the village."

"And you let me sweat and rot
in the French prison at Marseilles, thinking I should never return, until the French government pardoned me. Did anybody know that I had been pardoned, and was coming home?"

They looked at each other and licked their lips. "Oui, oui, monseigneur," faltered Vitard. "Horace Broussac knew. He warned us to expect you."

A roar of anger broke from Kinross's lips. "So he is here? He has dared come back here?"

There was no reply.

"That money that would have saved me, had I been able to employ a lawyer—what did he do

Andre leaped at Broussac again.

with it? It never reached me. It has cost me five years of my life."

"Mon seigneur, we are poor men.
There was nothing that we could do," faltered Monsieur Vitard. "We knew that Horace Broussac had raised that money for you, but we were not sure whether he sent it to you, after he became guardian
of Madame Kinross."

"Guardian?" Eric Kinross set his back against the door. "Go on.
You amuse me," he said. "My lands—Horace Broussac, my dear
kinsman Horace, has perhaps sold them?"

"No, mon seigneur, but he has leased a strip to an American, a Monsieur Darrell, who is operating the mill that Horace Broussac set up."

"Name of a dog, where is he?"

"He is dead," snickered Hector Mackintosh. "He died in that fire that is raging along the lighthouse neck. You see, Horace Broussac persuaded Andre Galipeault that this Monsieur Darrell was a spy,
come to take us all away to prison in France. We knew better, but Andre is a very ignorant man."

"Go on."

Eric Hears What Has Been Going On

"And Horace Broussac loves your wife and was jealous because she is in love with this Monsieur Darrell."

The seigneur remained perfectly silent, glaring at the two, stammering out their story like schoolboys.

"So it was arranged tonight that this Monsieur Darrell should die, an—"

"Where is Horace Broussac?"

"I think he is at the lighthouse, mon seigneur."

Another hoarse peal of laughter
burst from Eric Kinross' throat.
Then, without a word, he opened the door and strode out into the chill fog and whipping wind, leaving the two men looking at one another in terror.

"He is the same devil as ever," whispered Hector Mackintosh, "but I think his years in the French prison had made him mad. What shall we do, Alphonse?"

"Do? Nothing. Keep still!"

"But what will he do?"

"Kill Horace Broussac, of course."

"Then everything will be known,
and we—"

"Bah, you are a coward, Hector

Mackintosh. That affray on St.
Pierre is already old history. Besides, it was not we who killed
the French revenue man. Let matters take their course; we are safe.
Leave that devil to make his plans.
If he kills Horace Broussac, nobody in St. Victor will miss him. He is not one of us habitants by birth;
he is a foreigner, from Quebec."

There was a sea-road at low tide
by which one could pass from St.
Victor to the lighthouse. It was along this that Broussac had driven, tortured by the terrors of Kinross' anticipated return, and his desire for Madeleine.

During his five years of guardianship he had managed to secure the bulk of the seigniorial rights in the form of cash in a Montreal bank.
He had disposed of Mark's strip,
and an additional one, to certain lumber companies. He had played his crooked game desperately, tracing the hours, almost the minutes that must elapse before Kinross came back.

He pulled his horse to a standstill before Madeleine's door, with a grating of wheels upon the gravel.
The girl was upon him, white-faced,
terror-stricken, almost before he was out of the rig.

"The fire! The fire!" she cried.

"Is Monsieur Darrell safe?"

"Darrell? Oh, I reckon he's safe," answered Broussac. "I didn't come here to talk about Darrell. Madeleine, my yacht is in the harbor. I want you to come away with me tonight. I am a rich man.
I can give you everything in the world, instead of your living here, shut up in this cottage. What's the use of waiting any longer?"

"You're mad," cried Madeleine.

"My husband is alive, and, if he were dead, I don't love you."

"You're a fool, a little fool! I tell you he's dead. Come with me
—you're coming with me, I say,"
he panted, clutching her by the wrists.

"Let me go! I will not go with you! I hate you!" cried Madeleine.

"I tell you you're coming with me," cried Broussac, almost demented. He knew that Kinross'
ship had reached Quebec the day before, from France. He had to stake everything on a few minutes,
to beat down her resistance.

"I will not go! I will not go!"

He was dragging her toward the rig. But suddenly the bearded face of Andre Galipeault loomed up out of the fog. Andre, half-crazed, and holding a knife in his hand.
Without a word, he slashed at Broussac viciously. The point of the knife went through the lawyer's coat, ripping a long rent in it.

"Kill him, Andre!" cried Madeleine hysterically. "He is torturing me!" And she darted into the darkness.

Andre leaped at Broussac again.
Broussac was a strong man, and a burly one, but he saw death in the old man's eyes. He knew his dream, his mad dream, was over.
Madeleine would never be his.

But he still had the proceeds of the Kinross estate neatly piled away in the bank in Montreal, in the investments that would make him a rich man when he took up the new life he had been planning

Broussac Dashes
To His Yacht

He lashed out furiously with his foot at Andre, catching the old man in the stomach and doubling him up with pain. Then, leaping into his rig, with a last shouted invective at Madeleine, he turned and raced back along the sea-road.

He thanked his God for the fog,
which would enable him to steal
away unperceived upon the yacht.
He had kept his two men aboard;
thick as the fog was, the lighthouse beam would enable him to pass the dangerous ridge of rocks and gain
the open channel.

Broussac nearly ran down a man who was striding, shouting, along the edge of the rocks. Perhaps, had they encountered, Kinross would have settled his account with Broussac then and there. But Kinross did not recognize Broussac in the fog, and it did not occur to him that the man in the rig was Broussac, returning from the light-house.

As a matter of fact, it was not Broussac of whom the seigneur was thinking at the moment. He was thinking of his wife, the little girl of fifteen, whom he had married half-an-hour before the boat sailed for the sealing-grounds. He had loved her all his life. The demon of violence that had made Eric Kinross a sort of berserk Viking,
especially when he was in liquor,
had never changed that feeling of tenderness for Madeleine.

There was something quite unusual in his feeling for her, and he had never even kissed another woman in his life. That had been his hell in the prison at Marseilles, thinking of her. Of course he had not guessed that his three companions had concealed the incident on
St. Pierre.

He strode along the road, shouting gaily. And now they heard him. Old Andre, terrified as he was—for he knew that voice—terrified by the return of the man whom he had left to take his punishment alone, nevertheless stood gamely beside Madeleine.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, November 17, was:

"MORTALS AND IMMORTALS"
 The Golden Text was:

"Thou art no more a servant, but a son; and if a son, then an heir of God through Christ" (Gal. 4: 7).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible:

"While I live will I praise the Lord: I will sing praises unto my God while I have any being. Put not your trust in princes, nor in the son of man, in whom there is no help. His breath goeth forth, he returneth to the earth; in that very day his thoughts perish. Happy is he that hath the God of Jacob for his help, whose hope is in the Lord his God" (Psalms 146: 2-5).

"Whatever is material is mortal. To the five corporeal senses, man appears to be matter and mind united; but Christian Science reveals man as the idea of God, and declares the corporeal senses to be mortal and erring illusions. . . . Mortals are the counterfeit of immortals. They are the children of the wicked one, or the one evil, which declares that man begins in dust or as a material embryo. . . . In the illusion of life that is here today and gone tomorrow, man would be wholly mortal,

This Month in Your Service BULLETIN

We go nostalgic and celebrate Christmas in the little red schoolhouse of long ago. This is a suspenseful occasion. Will you be snowbound the night of the doings? Will you remember your lines? All is revealed in "Once Upon a Christmas Time." The illustrations are by John McKee.

As Entertaining As Your Favorite Magazine

THE Service BULLETIN

Once Upon a Christmas Time

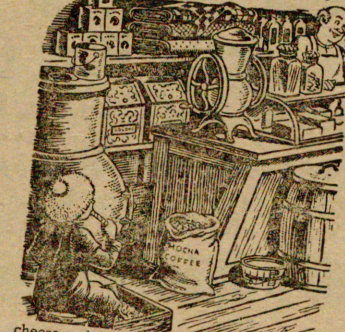

THERE was to be a Christmas doings at the little red schoolhouse. You were shocked to find that you were to "speak a piece" at the jolly event. But that was the standard assignment for small fry. The older boys and girls were also given dialogues and songs. In the anxious rehearsal that followed, you sounded alarmingly like a broken record.

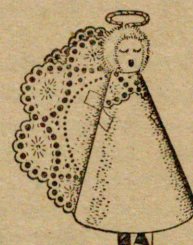

One of the older girls, Jennie, assisted at the borrowed organ during song practice. With her partner, she reminded the organist when they were engaged in a race, and that the organist and the vocalists should reach the finish line together. Forefinger raised, Teacher gave the pitch, a backward jerk of her head, and they were launched into song.

You were neither allowed to attend whispered conferences about "Teacher's present," nor hauled in the evergreen. But when they were per, you were permitted a turn at the pop-corn close to the hot stove that the schoolma'am became a statistic.

Your tagging presence was tolerated by the big boys and girls on a decoration buying trip to the village store. At heel, you trotted happily along the wooden sidewalk and up the steps. Once inside the emporium, you were given a peppermint stick before being relegated to an upturned nail keg by the being freshly ground coffee, and molasses, vinegar, and kerosene (absorbed in spigoted casks). Your eyes traveled from the beautiful glass show, case with peppermint, horehound, little hearts, and ribbon candy, down the counter to the cheese box. You longed to cut a wedge of cheese and dip into the cracker barrel. Completely dehydrated by the time to leave, you had to be taken to the tin water bucket. As the Christmas doings drew close, you were tortured by nightmares: you were snow-bound and couldn't get to the school, you got there all right, but muffled your lines. You must have been heard for the festive night was beautiful. Snag between your parents in the cutler, hot bricks at your feet, you peered up at the brilliant sky. It was decorated for Christmas too, all hung with stars, as you delightedly told your mother. And the sleigh-bells rang and the runners squeaked merrily all the way to the little red schoolhouse.

Angel Pin Up

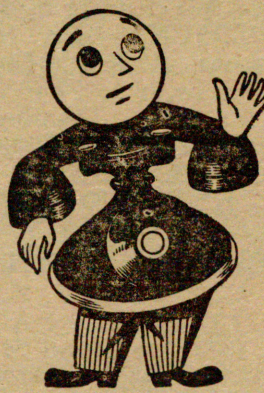

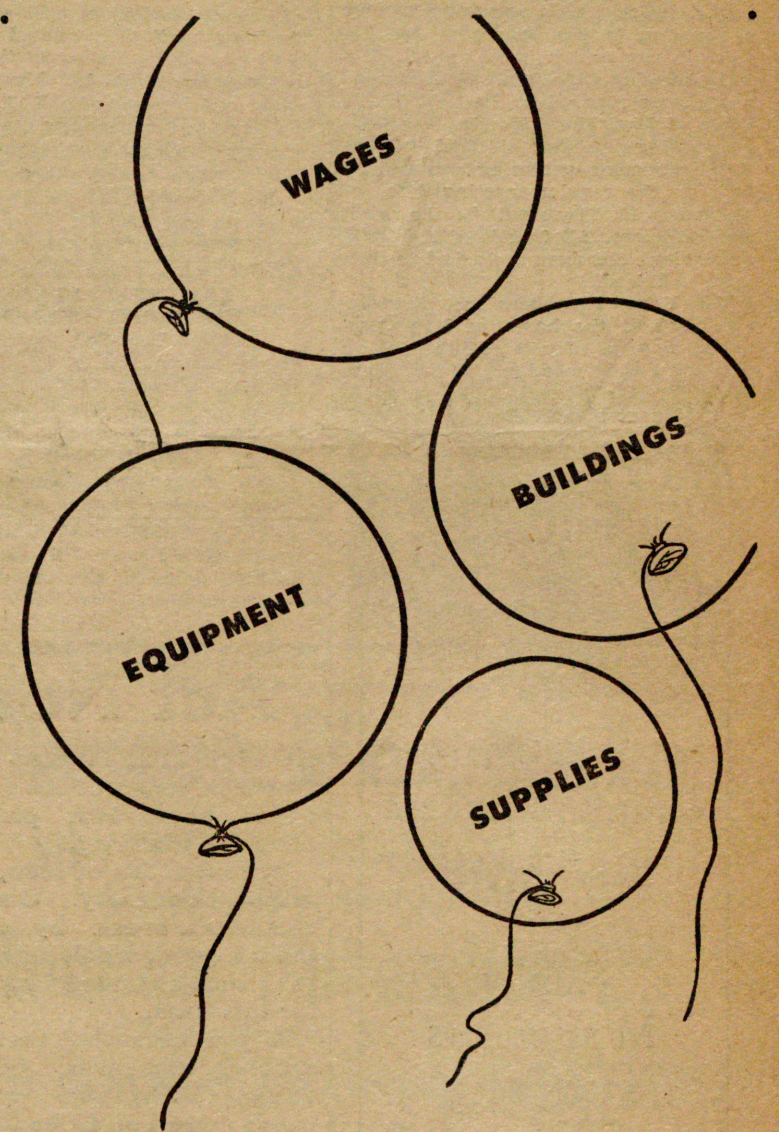

Mr. & Mrs. Snow

We go up-to-date on the About You and Your House page with tantalizing Christmas tree and table decorations. Here are Angel Pin Ups (halo-equipped) and merry Cow Bells which revolutionize their paper drinking-cup forbears. Here too are Mr. and Mrs. Snow, a not too substantial couple really, with marshmallow antecedents. Yes, there are complete how-to-make instructions included for all decorations shown. the high cost of living hits HIM too!

• Despite its greatly increased volume of business, Illinois Bell, like everyone else has a "high cost of living" problem.

Year after year it's been costing more and more to give you the kind of service you want. Our payrolls have more than doubled since 1940. The prices of materials and equipment are higher than ever. So are building construction costs.

These high costs mean that our expenses have gone up faster than our income. The result is that our rate of earnings is as low as in the worst depression year.

UP IN THE AIR: A fight to the finish for a 100 million dollar a year stake got under way in Atlantic City Nov. 15. The challenger—powerful Pan American Airways, wants to criss-cross the richest, most profitable air territory in the world with high speed express service, linking 13 major U. S. cities, whose terminals will serve as hop-off points for its network of foreign routes. Violently opposing this are the airlines now serving these same cities. The formidable anti-P.A.A. coalition includes the "big four"—airlines, American, United, T.W.A. and Eastern, Throttle wide open and just as mad as Erantiff, Chicago & Southern, National and Western. The referee is the Civil Aeronautics Board, whose decision will be handed down after months of hearings, briefs and oral arguments. Meantime the entire industry will be, shall we say, "up in the air?"

Lyson, Ray Minch and father Frank, flew to Howard, So. Dakota in the twin-engine Cessna for a week of hunting. Returning last Friday each brought back his quota of pheasants. Rufe's Ramblings

By Rufe Pickett

Way back yonder when I was living in the foot hills of the Blue Ridges, I was walking down the road one day when I met old man Bill Ashcraft. He spoke to me and after taking his fishing pole and string of fish in his left hand he held out his right toward me and sez: "Rufus, I've always had a whole lot of confidence in you and I know that I have been doing a right smart bit of fishing since I got back from the sanitarium and every day a big rattler would come a crawling out of the rocks and I'd run home. Today I struck at him and he struck at me. Take a look at my hand and tell me if you think it was the old trouble or whether the snake was real." I looked at his swollen arm and hand and pointing to the punctures made by a couple of fangs, I sez: "It was a real live rattler snake and no doubt about it." The old man smiled a smile of relief, thanked me, and I could tell by his quicker steps that I had told him something that pleased him. Now the only reason for my mentioning this incident is that some of the readers may get the idea that I am at times putting in an ad for the famous beverage made out of sawn which grows on the hillsides. This Rambling is sufficient proof that I am not advertising this product for if I were I would have said that the rattler which bit the old gentleman was found dead shortly after; you know that it's a poor rule that won't work both ways and you would have thought that the same applied to poison seeping through a holler front tooth.

Mrs. Earl Reish of Orland Park, Mrs. Frank Yunker and Mr. and Mrs. Irving Pronger of Palos Park attended the installation of officers of the LaGrange Chapter No. 201 O. E. S. in the Masonic Temple at LaGrange, Monday evening. Mrs. William Hoffman, the former Lillian Yunker of Orland Park, now residing in LaGrange, was installed as Associate Matron.

Richard Pihl, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pihl of 108th avenue and Martin Yunker, son of Mrs. Elsie Yunker, arrived in Orland Park Sunday morning from Fort Dix, New Jersey, where they have been in training in the army. They will be home all week and will return to New Jersey Sunday the 24th.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pihl, Marilyn and Richard motored to Bridgman, Michigan to spend a day with Mrs. Pihl's sister and family, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Baumeister and son Bill. Bill was in the Naval Air Reserve for three years and was just recently discharged.

The steeple of the Christ Lutheran church which was damaged by lightning some time ago is being repaired and reshingled.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Heiting celebrated their 32nd wedding anniversary Sunday, November 17, with a dinner. The celebration appeared in triplicate, as relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Beckman of Lowell, Ind., celebrated their 1st anniversary and Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Heiting of Naperville, Ill., celebrated their 13th anniversary. Other guests were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Beckman and son of Lowell, Ind., Mr. and Mrs. Frank Garrett and son of Rogers Park, Mr. and Mrs. William Heiting and sons of Homewood, Ill.

Monday evening Mr. and Mrs. Harry Heiting, Miss Marie Heiting and Mr. Warren Townsend called on the William Heitings in Homewood and helped William III celebrate his second birthday anniversary.

While this may not be recent news to some folks in Orland Park, it is to most of us—a baby girl was born on October 16 in a hospital at Great Falls, Montana, and has been named Sherry Lee and the proud parents are Mr. and Mrs. Harold Morlock Jr.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

Why Bert Won First Prize

Folks weren't surprised when Bert Childers won first prize for his corn at the county fair.

Yet the judges admit it wasn't just because Bert had the finest ears of corn. He knew how to display them: neatly arranged, with the husks cleanly trimmed, and the booth white and spotless.

"Trimmings" sure make a difference no matter what you're offering—as Andy Botkin, keeper of the Garden Tavern, well knows. Andy doesn't just sell good beer. He sells it in a place that's clean and attractive...in nice surroundings that belong with the enjoyment of a wholesome beverage of moderation.

And Andy, of course, is a whole-hearted supporter of "Self Regulation." That's the system by which the Brewers and tavern keepers themselves make sure that taverns selling beer are clean and orderly.

From where I sit, people like Andy also rate a "First prize." Not just for the quality of the product—but for the "trimmings" too.

Telephone Company To Seek Higher Rates

While engaged in the largest service improvement effort in its history, the Telephone Company has been struggling with its own high cost-of-living problems. All during the war, and especially since the war, Illinois Bell Telephone Company earnings have been going down. This is a fact, despite the largest number of telephones and calls ever. This year earnings will be as low as in our worst depression year. Earnings next year will be the lowest in 65 year history of the Company. Compared with the pre-war year of 1940, Illinois Bell income is up 59 percent, but expenss are up 80 percent. This new expense burden includes increases on almost everything we buy.

However, the greatest expense increase has occurred in wages, where our total payroll costs are up 126 percent over 1940. Some 14,000 additional people have been employed and trained to man new equipment in place or on order—but the payroll increase is largely because of higher wage rates. In the Company at this time, 60c out of every dollar goes to employees in wages. The Company desires to continue paying good wages and improving the service, but with earnings down 54 percent since 1940, they face a serious problem.

The fact is, that low earnings now threaten the financial soundness of the business, with consequent harm to customers' service and employees' welfare.

Hence, it is evident that in the future telephone rates, in common with most other prices, must reflect the increase cost of doing business.

The Company will not know exactly when a request will be filed with the Illinois Commerce Commission, nor exactly how much will be required to restore the balance between income and expenses.

Joliet Nursing School To Admit Class In Feb.

Because of the outstanding shortage of graduate nurses and the many opportunities offered to young women who prepare for a nursing career, the School of Nursing at Silver Cross Hospital, Joliet, has decided to admit a mid-year freshman class early in February 1947. This will give mid-year high school graduates and those who have graduated previously an opportunity to begin training now for the many lucrative positions that will be available to professional nurses during the next few years in hospitals, clinics, schools and colleges, public health agencies and as stewardesses on trains and airplanes.

According to a two-year study just completed by the National Commission on Hospital Care, 195,000 more hospital beds are now needed in this country to provide adequate care for all the people. In Illinois alone, many new hospitals are now being planned and many existing hospitals require extensive expansion in order to take care of the people of their communities that seek hospitalization. This expansion will create numerous new positions in hospitals or graduate nurses. At the same time public health agencies are being established in many areas that did not have them previously and existing agencies are enlarging their programs, thus offering many interesting positions in the public health nursing field.

An illustrated 24-page brochure about the facilities offered at this school and nursing as a career will be sent to any interested high school graduate who addresses a request to: Director of Nursing, Silver Cross Hospital, Joliet, Ill.

This Home-Mixed Cough Relief Is Wonderful

No Cooking. So Easy. Saves Dollars.

To get the most surprising relief from coughs due to colds, you can easily prepare a medicine, right in your own kitchen. It's very easy—a child could do it—needs no cooking, and tastes so good that children take it willingly. But you'll say it's hard to beat for quick results.

First, make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup. Get 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex from any druggist, and pour it into a pint bottle. Fill up with your syrup. This gives you a full pint of really splendid cough syrup—about four times as much for your money. It never spoils, and lasts a long time.

And it gives quick relief. It acts in three ways—loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages.

Pinex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well known for quick action in coughs and bronchial irritations. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

You Go to Bed TO SLEEP—NOT TO FRET

Ever notice how small troubles look big to you and greater troubles seem crushing when nervous tension keeps you awake at night? You can't be at your best mentally or physically unless you get sufficient sleep.

Miles Nervine has helped thousands to more restful nights and more peaceful days. Ask your druggist for Miles Nervine. CAUTION—use only as directed. Effervescent tablets, 35c and 75c—Liquid, 25c and $1.00. Miles Laboratories, Inc., Elkhart, Indiana.

BOOKS 'TALK' FOR BLIND . . . Sightless readers get an inkling of the personalities of leading authors through the Talking Book editions of their works. Here Edna Ferber, at the New York sound studios of American Foundation for the Blind, places part of her autobiography, "A Peculiar Treasure," on the record.

PERSONALITY ON PLATE

Talking Books Give Sightless Inkling of Author's Identity

WNU Features

Voices of many of the nation's leading authors now reach blind men and women throughout the country on the long-playing phonograph discs of the Talking Books. Main objective of the new policy of having well-known writers personally record at least a portion of the Talking Book edition of their works is to give blind people an inkling of the author's personality, it is explained by American Foundation for the Blind, with headquarters in New York. The foundation records these volumes in sound for the Library of Congress.

Some writers personally record whole volumes. Jan Struther read all of her "Mrs. Miniver" on the Talking Book discs while recently Glenway Westcott completed recording in full his best seller, "Apartment in Athens." For the six hours necessary to record it, John Mason Brown read all of his book, "Many a Watchful Night."

Trained Readers Aid.

Usually, however, the author reads merely his introduction or his first chapter, the recording then being completed by a trained reader from stage and radio.

Authors who have co-operated with the foundation in recording the Talking Book editions of their works include Somerset Maugham, Lin Yutang, Eleanor Roosevelt, Thomas Mann, Edna Ferber, John Kieran, Oliver LaFarge and Dorothy Caruso.

Former Prisoners Assume Santa Role

ATLANTA, GA. — Children the world over are basically good of heart, Atlanta's ex-prisoners of war insist as they map plans for playing Santa Claus to the youngsters of Bad Nauheim, Germany.

The project is being undertaken by the Atlanta chapter of the Barbed Wire club, composed of former prisoners of war.

"The Barbed Wire club selected as its first project the job of playing Santa Claus to little German children. We remember they were our friends," declared Horace Wood, club president, in appealing for donations of toys and dolls.

Wood, former infantry lieutenant who spent five months as a prisoner of war in Germany, recalled an instance when a German youth gave him a light for his cigarette.

"There were other times when little children along the street would give us cheese and bread. This food tasted good to a prisoner of war," Wood insisted.

Musical Pillow Is Aid to Harmony

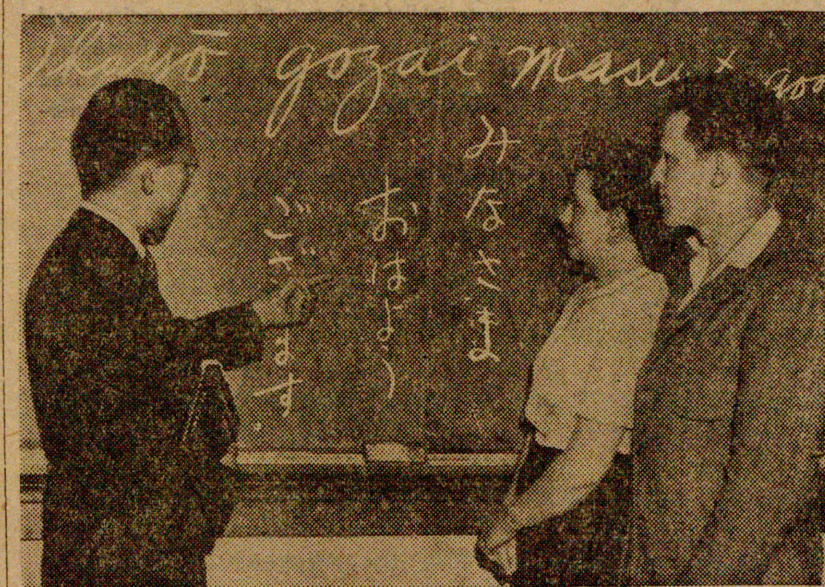

NEW YORK. — Science's latest contribution to harmony in the boudoir is the musical pillow—stuffed with radio.

Step by step electrical engineers have been attempting to overcome the pitfalls of marriage with such annoyance eliminators as electric blankets, spot lighting—and now musical pillows "for individual listening."

The pillow speaker is the size of a silent butler and about the same shape. It plugs into a bedside radio and can be slipped into the pillow case with no one the wiser.

Although the manufacturers guarantee the device is shockproof, they won't say the same about the programs that come out of it.

The musical pillow, which made its debut in army hospitals, now has been offered for home use. An airline has tested it on some of its runs and is planning to pass out melodic pillows to passengers on trans-oceanic hops.

GOOD FOR EVIL . . . Preparing for another invasion of Japan, this time carrying the gospel instead of bombs, Jacob Deshazer, one of the original Doolittle raiders, is shown with his bride as they take a lesson in Japanese at Seattle Pacific college.

Idle Vessel Sought for Housing

CAMDEN, N. J. — Among the unusual housing plans revealed by the National Association of Housing Officials is the search underway in the Camden area for a surplus navy vessel to house 50 families now without shelter.

The drive is aimed at procurement of one of three unfinished and idle vessels in the Philadelphia-Camden area. The ship would be used to house evicted and veterans' families until more adequate shelter is available.

Welfare agencies backed by the Community Chest are leading the drive for the housing facilities.

A similar housing plan already is in effect at Alabama Polytechnic institute, which is using 93 tugboat deckhouses at Auburn for student veterans. Each unit houses two men with a "second story" pilot house which can be used as a study.

PAUL IN ATHENS AND CORINTH

LESSON TEXT—Acts 17:22-28a; 18:1-4; 1 Corinthians 1:22-25.
MEMORY SELECTION — For other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ.—1 Corinthians 3:11.

History repeats itself, in spiritual things as well as in secular events. The experiences of Paul at Athens and Corinth are peculiarly applicable to our day, for here he encountered the very problems which face (and have apparently stopped) the church today.

The cities were not far apart in miles, and they were both pagan, but they differed widely in their cultural and commercial development.

Athens was the home of a godless culture. Corinth was a prosperous commercial center known throughout the world for grossly licentious living.

What did the gospel accomplish in such cities? We shall soon see.

I. Godless Intellectuality Meets the Gospel (Acts 17:22-28a).

Paul was alone in Athens. He had been separated from his companions Silas and Timothy (Acts 17:14), and was to await them at Athens. While he waited he looked the city over and found it wholly given to idolatry (v. 16). This was no idle observation of a scientific mind, for it caused Paul's spirit to stir in him.

It is a bad sign when a professed Christian can live in the presence of sin and false worship and not be deeply moved by it.

Paul did something about it! He went into the great daily gatherings of philosophers and gave them some solid Christian philosophy to work on. They were curious to know more, and when the opportunity arose, Paul preached the sermon on Mars Hill.

He found them superstitiously religious, but religion does not save. They even feared lest they had forgotten some god, so one altar was "to the unknown God" (v. 23). This gave Paul his opportunity, for he declared the one true God—unknown to them—as the answer to their question.

The intellectual felt superior and had an idea that God needed him, a kind of snobbery which is as current in 1946 as it was in Paul's day. How effectively he disposed of that attitude appears in verses 24 and 25. They needed God, and without him they could not draw a breath!

Moreover, the pagan intellectual then as now would swell with pride as he thought of the race and people to whom he belonged. They were superior—a master race. Paul declares God's truth that all men are of one blood, and that the nations are in his hands (v. 26).

What they had to do, and what the godless intellectuals of our day need to do, is to seek God in humble repentance and faith; then lives can become fine and noble and useful (vv. 27, 32-34).

II. Sophisticated Immorality Meets the Gospel (Acts 18:1-4).

To Corinth Paul came (evidently still alone) without friends or funds. Like all well-bred Jewish boys, he knew a trade. He was a sail maker and tent maker. Rather than have the ungodly men of Corinth hinder his preaching by the criticism that he was doing it for money, he supported himself.

The minister who is eager for rich financial return, and who is willing to accept the gifts of the ungodly that his work may prosper, has closed the door for his testimony to many who do not believe. In fact, one wonders whether he has any real testimony to give.

In this wicked city, given over to vice and fleshly pleasure, Paul made his way to the synagogue and began to preach Christ. He reasoned and persuaded and won some for the Lord as he continued with them for a year and a half (Acts 18:11).

Paul's letter to the Corinthians reveals the struggle of the believers at Corinth to maintain moral standards and spiritual warmth in such a city, but it also clearly indicates that the gospel of Christ is "the power of God unto salvation to everyone that believeth" (Rom. 1:16), even in the midst of sin and corruption.

III. The Gospel Meets Sin—and Is Victorious (1 Cor. 1:22-25).

The wisdom of this world—for which Athens stood in a special way—becomes foolish in the eyes of men, as it is already in the sight of God, when it stands up against the gospel (read vv. 18-21).

The preaching of the cross, which looks foolish to the worldling (v. 23), is the wisdom and the power of God, and by it men are saved. Whether Jew or Gentile, whether seeking signs or wisdom, whether "up-and-out" by way of pagan intellectualism or "down-and-out" by way of immorality—no matter what man's race, or his problem—the answer is in the gospel which we are privileged to teach and preach, for it is the gospel of "Christ the power of God and the wisdom of God" to all who are called by him.

... Editorial ...

Next Thursday will be Thanksgiving Day. We hope every home will enjoy the day to the utmost. Because of the joy of the occasion, let us not forget what we have to be thankful for.

In all our plenty, even tho we are deprived of many necessities, yet when we recall the countless homes and families in other countries, war torn, who are homeless, hungry, without clothing and who are suffering in every way, we cannot but stop and reflect.

Perhaps we take too much of our blessings for granted and never give a thought "way back when" to our Pilgrim Fathers, who came to our shores because of great persecution. If they had not been of brave and courageous spirit; left their comfortable homes, and set sail for a new land, would we today have our comforts and plenty in this country which they founded?

It took courage for them to sail, but they valued liberty and chafed under increasing persecution, enough so to cause them to make a desperate move.

Is history being repeated today, with the coming to our shores during the past several months, of those two boat loads of brave Estonians, who would not submit to be governed by the oppressive hand of Communists, strangers, forcing to rule smaller countries not their own, the same which is being tried in our own United States also?

When the Pilgrims arrived, there was no one here telling them they could not land, and that they had to return from whence they came. They were so thankful to be freed from oppression, that their first thought was to give thanks to Almighty God, the guiding Spirit who brought them to a new home, where hope sprang anew in their breasts.

It was the self same spirit that prompted the recent group from Estonia, the oldest democratic country in the world, to seek a new land, a land which they had heard so much about; of liberty-loving ideals and equality of people, a non-oppressive people.

But when they arrived what happened? Our Government bid them depart. They had no visa; they came without the proper formal procedure. If it were not for some thoughtful and kind individuals who gave them a temporary place in which to live, they would have had a hard time of it.

How different it is in the case of Earl Browder, a communist, who also came to this country, boldly, without a visa or formal papers, who sneaked in, so to say, thru the back door. Our Government feted and recognized him, but for the sake of the looks of things, he was told at times, he must depart, but still lingered on.

He became a law violator, served a prison term, and yet was allowed to stay, even to being a candidate for an office on our national ticket. Finally, thru pressure, our Government had him leave.

Who knows but that these brave Estonians, who now, due to much pressure being presented to our government, are permitted to become citizens, will be a great help to us some day when the Red Party, will persecute us, if we do not do something about it at once.

So let us be more thoughtful about our thankfulness and look at ourselves to see if our easy-going, 'not wanting to be bothered' ways, are conditions to be thankful for, or to be ashamed of.

Commerce Chamber
Asks For Red Expose

The Communist Party is an agent of a foreign power and should be forced by law to reveal its members and sources of income.

That is the conclusion of a report on Communist infiltration in the United States made by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. The report was drafted by a special committee of the National Chamber headed by Francis P. Matthews, Omaha lawyer and business man.

Opening a campaign for exposure of Communists in this country, the report calls for government action to bring the Reds into the open. The report says:

"Since Communism thrives upon deceit, exposure of the facts would be a potent counter weapon."

"We propose more fact-gathering, competent, impartial and patriotic. Both private groups and the government have a responsibility here."
